Bell Let's Talk Day is January 30

Join the conversation and surpass a billion total messages of support for mental health and $100 million in total Bell funding. Bell will donate towards mental health initiatives in Canada by contributing 5¢ for every applicable text, call, tweet, social media video view and use of our Facebook frame or Snapchat filter. These 5 ways to communicate about mental illness show your support and can help those who struggle overcome their concerns about seeking help:

- Language matters – pay attention to the words you use about mental illness
- Educate yourself – learn, know and talk more, understand the signs
- Be kind – small acts of kindness speak a lot
- Listen and ask – sometimes it's best to just listen
- Talk about it – start a dialogue, break the silence. Let's talk!

Food for Your Journey - Listening

A group of applicants in a steamship office were waiting to be interviewed for a job as wireless operator. The room was filled with such a buzz of conversation that they paid no attention to the dots and dashes which began coming over the loudspeaker. Then in came a newcomer who sat down quietly by himself. Suddenly, he snapped to attention, walked into the private office and came out smiling.

"Say," one of the crowd called out, "how'd you get in ahead of us? We were here first."

"One of you would have got the job," he answered, "if you had listened to the message from the loudspeaker."

"What message?" they asked, surprised.

"Why, the code," the stranger said. "It said: 'The man I want must always be alert. The first man who gets this message and comes into my office will be placed on one of my ships as radio operator.'"

A Smile for Your Journey

There is a story about God calling the world's three most powerful Presidents for a meeting: Presidents coming from Russia, China and U.S.A. God told them one thing: "The world will end by the year 2020." The three Presidents went to their respective countries and told their people about what God had told them.

The Russian President said: "My dear people, I have two messages to give you, both of them are bad news. First, God is real and second, the world will end by the year 2020.

The President of China announced to his people, "My dear people, I have two important messages for you, one unbelievable and God is real. The horrible message is that this God is so fed up with our world that He wants to destroy it."

The American President appeared on the national television to speak to the Americans. He said: "My dear people I have three messages to convey to you, all of them are good news. First, God is still in control of the world. Second, He talked to your President directly. And the third is, our world will end by the year 2020 and all our problems will be over."
